Report on Promoting Physical, Mental and Emotional Well-being among Students

Presenter: Sri M. Santha Singh

Date: 18-02-2019

Time: 10AM

Venue: Seminar Hall

During the meeting of the Social Welfare Committee, Sri M. Santha Singh, an esteemed professor, researcher, and social activist, delivered an insightful presentation on strategies to promote physical, mental, and emotional well-being among students in colleges. The following is a summary of the key points discussed:

Importance of Well-being: Sri M. Santha Singh emphasized the critical role of well-being in students' overall success and academic performance. He highlighted that students' physical, mental, and emotional health significantly impact their ability to thrive academically and personally.

Wellness Workshops: Sri M. Santha Singh proposed organizing wellness workshops as a proactive approach to addressing students' well-being needs. These workshops could cover topics such as stress management, mindfulness, healthy lifestyle habits, and self-care strategies.

Counseling Services: Recognizing the importance of mental health support, Sri M. Santha Singh recommended the establishment of counseling services within colleges. Trained counselors could provide confidential support to students experiencing academic, personal, or emotional challenges.

Collaboration and Partnerships: Sri M. Santha Singh highlighted the potential for collaboration and partnerships with external organizations, such as healthcare providers, mental health advocacy groups, and community-based organizations. These collaborations could enhance the range and effectiveness of well-being initiatives.

In conclusion, Sri M. Santha Singh's presentation provided valuable insights into promoting physical, mental, and emotional well-being among college students. His recommendations underscored the importance of proactive measures, comprehensive support services, and a campus culture that prioritizes student well-being. The Social Welfare Committee acknowledges the significance of these strategies and will consider incorporating them into future initiatives aimed at supporting students' holistic development and success.
